THE GREAT FIGHT OF BRITISH TRADE
London Daily Mail

II

As he showed, skilled fitters or turners, because they work in the unsheltered engineering industries, receive only £6s. 6d. a week, when they are so lucky as to get work at all. On the other hand a refuse carrier, working for a municipality, gets 85s. a week and his work is constant. The wonder is that we have any skilled artisans left.

This unjust preference given to the sheltered trades and this advantage which their workers have gained over their comrades who are busy providing the goods with which they buy food and raw material, is an unfortunate handicap to our exports. It is being rendered more serious by the tactics of the mischievous chief-markers in the coal dispute, who are recklessly asserting that a catastrophic strike in May is certain.

We are very glad to see that Mr. Frank Hodges on Wednesday rebuked these gentry and warned them against the grave consequence of their wild speeches. "There is developing," he said, "a profound sense of insecurity, a hesitancy, a marking-time just at the moment when initiative and enterprise born of confidence should be the order of the day."
